

CLUBMEN IN FREE-FOR-ALL AT PRIZE FIGHT

Yachtsmen and Others
Well Known in Exclusive Circles.

MOBBED THE REFEREE.

Official Ran Gauntlet and Battle Royal in Evening Clothes Followed.

Yachtsmen, clubmen, business men, men whose names are familiar in New York's exclusive circles, numbering 150, many of them in evening clothes, witnessed the bloodiest prize fight ever seen about New York early to-day, and because the decision of the referee did not please the more sporting element, there followed a general fight, in which more than one eye was blacked and more than one shirt front mussed.

The fight was scheduled for twenty rounds for a small purse of $200, between Sator Burke, the former champion welter-weight of the navy, and Mickey McDonough, a Brooklyn fighter, who, until this fight had been unbeaten and thought to be unbeatable.

Boarding a steam yacht owned by a man of prominence at West One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, the fighters and the man who were to witness the bout sailed up the Hudson to the home of a yacht club at One Hundred and Seventy-ninth street. The yacht arrived there shortly before midnight and no time was wasted getting to business.

Heavy Betting on Fight.
Both men had weighed in at 142 pounds. A ring was made while the fighters stripped, and then began the betting. Every man there had small sums, but sums ranging from $100 to $1,000. The betting opened on even terms, but soon the McDonough money was more freely offered than the money on the sailor. The odds on Burke dropped from 100 to 200 when the men entered the ring.

The fight was like a fury from the start. McDonough, skilled in the art of boxing to a point of nicety and trained perfectly, was the sailor's master for the first three rounds. Burke seemed to be bleeding from every pore. He was knocked down many times, and he was only to be felled again.

The end of the third round found Burke staggering weak and blinded.
Some one gave him whiskey. The sailor came to life in a flash. He walked out at the ring of the cone, smiling, assured and determined. He let drive at Mick-ey's heart, and he found him, felling him like an ox. The Brooklyn man jumped to his feet. Again he went down. Four times he went down during the round, and his blood spattered on the shirt fronts of the men about the ring.

Five times in the next three rounds McDonough went to the floor. In the seventh round he was sent snorting over the ropes with a body blow, his head striking a pillar, cutting it to the bone.
"Stop the fight!" yelled some of the men. "It will be a killing."
"Stop nothing," came from McDonough, and he climbed back over the ropes.

Free Fight After Decision.

For four rounds more the Brooklyn fighter roared the sailor, falling from every waist-rope. McDonough, who back to his feet and staggered out for another blow and another fall. Then in the eleventh round, after Burke had floored McDonough five times with blows on the jaw, he suddenly landed a left swing on his jaw, dropping McDonough again. After the referee had counted out McDonough he turned and gave the right to the sailor, when there came cries of foul. Men fought to get to the referee. He defended himself and made for the open door of the clubhouse, running a gauntlet of cuffs and blows as he made his escape.

Then the men in evening clothes began fighting among themselves. They swore, they clucked, they went to the door together, and they fought like mad.
Burke's men claiming the money and the Brooklyn fighter's backers claiming a foul.

When cooler heads prevailed a score of the audience had black eyes, torn clothes and were generally mussed up.
When peace was restored the referee both with broken noses, split ears and faces, heads out open, staggering from loss of blood and over-excitation, were carried on board the yacht. The well-dressed men followed. Anchor was weighed, and in the early dawn the yacht pulled up at One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street.
The police have not heard of the fight.
It was a most exclusive affair.

RELATIVE OF BEECHER DEAD.

Dr. Amorette M. Beecher, daughter of David Beecher, and a cousin of Henry Ward Beecher and Harriet Beecher Stowe, died last night after a brief illness, aged eighty-three years. The deceased was born in the town of Andover, Mass., and was a prominent educator and missionary. Her only immediate living relative is a daughter of her brother, Caleb Luther Beecher, of Brooklyn,

The little Doctor, in your Vest Pocket

SEE the thin, round-cornered little Enamel Box below.
When carried in your vest pocket it means Health-Insurance.

It contains Six Candy Tablets of pleasant taste, almost as pleasant as Chocolate.

Each tablet is a working dose of Cascarets, which acts like Exercise on the Bowels and Liver.

It will not purge, sicken, nor upset the stomach.

Because it is not a "Bile-driver like Salts, Soda, Carmel, Jalap, Senna, nor Aperient Waters.

These waste Digestive Jules of the system needed tomorrow. In merely flushing-out the Bowels today.

Neither little like Castor Oil, Glycerine, or other Oily Laxatives that simply lubricate the Intestines for transit of the food stopped up in them at that particular time.

These emergency drugs relieve the immediate trouble, but do not relieve its Cause.

The same trouble will therefore recur again till that Cause is removed permanently.

The chief cause of Constipation and Indigestion is a weakness of the Muscles that contract the Intestines and Bowels.

Cascarets are practically the Bowel Muscles what a Massage and Cold Bath paves the way for all other Diseases.

BACK TO BLOOMIN' LUNNON FOR JACK

Ow, ship me back to Lunnion where no Irish bobbies roam; Ship me back to good old Cheapside, to the place that I call home.

For the Bow'ry makes me weary and me throat is feeling brown—Take me back to dear old Lunnion, back to good old Lunnion town.

William Blundy, "soldier and sailor, too," went back to the good ship H. M.
S. Essex to-day through the international courtesy of Magistrate Barlow, of the West Side Court.

William was viewing the justly celebrated cold gray dawn over Manhattan Island, from a vantage point of a friendly lamp-post which had wandered up to him at Thirtieth street and Eighty avenue. Every once in awhile the lamp-post was twins, but just as friendly.

William was declaring that the blasted Bowery wasn't in it with Patterson lane when Policeman Stein-art took him in tow. While William was waiting in the bull-pen Policeman Trojan went by and William cried:

"There goes another bloody Mick!
The blarney for the blooming Hang-hampton Halliwell!" Trojan gave him a cruel look and passed on.

When William told the Magistrate that his shore leave was up at 7 o'clock the Court decided to send him back to the ship.

are to the Athletic Muscles.

They stimulate the Bowel Muscles to contract, expand, and squeeze the Digestive Jules out of foodstuffs.

Cascarets do this naturally, without purging or discomfort.

They don't help the Bowels and Liver lean upon similar assistance for the future.

This is why, with Cascarets, the dose may be lessened each succeeding time instead of increased, as it must be with all succeeding doses of other Cathartic and Laxatives.

Cascarets act like exercise.

If carried in your Vest Pocket,

Lady's Purse,) and eaten just when you suspect you need one, you will never know a sick day from the ordi-

all these ills begin in the Bowels, and paves the way for all other Diseases.
